DEDICATION.

*To the Oldest and Youngest Among Us,
to the
Wise and Best, the Strongest and Tenderest,
Our Teacher and Friend and Guide and Inspirer,*

DR. ALBERT TENNYSON BARRETT

This Volume is Affectionately Dedicated.

Foreword

A WORD to you, gentle reader, ere you begin the examination of this volume. We trust that you will accept this product of our efforts in the same spirit of good will and cordial fellowship in which it has been prepared.

We have striven to make this annual a living, interesting picture of our school life for the year 1915-1916. To the extent we have succeeded praise is not due so much to us as to the co-operation of the student body. To the assistance of certain members of both the Faculty and alumni is also due our profound gratitude.

It is our hope as you read this book you may be drawn closer to this grand institution. If you are not yet allied with this college, may you through the medium of this book be induced to seek this fountain of knowledge and learn as we do to appreciate the glory of Union.

History of Senior Class.

Crowded are the pages with recounted events which narrate to succeeding generations the accomplishments of those of yore. History is of so great a consequence that, were it not for its words, the world would be at a loss to know the past and to what degree of advancement it had traveled. Realizing that life is of an inestimable value, nowhere is the truth and faith in it shown to a greater extent than in repassing through the years of the class of '16.

Disregarding reports as to the ruggedness at certain points, this group steered resolutely upon the road to enrich itself with a share of "Union's" store. At first undecided as to the route to be pursued, it soon arranged the plans which have already led it within a short distance of the banks of certainty. From the slippery Latin shores, it crossed into the beautiful and picturesque Botanical and Zoological Gardens. Deciding to ascend the Astronomical ladder, it heard the appeals of Logic to come and listen to her. After hearing a most interesting and profitable sermon by her, the class journeyed into the Psychological realm whence it departed some time ago and is now sojourning in places yet replete with interest and instruction.

The attainments of the distinguished members of this class are too numerous to be detailed. Suffice it to say, that the indubitable and everlasting evidence of its accomplishments is blazing forth from the record it has made, which will be manifested when, as every victor merits, the Laureation, which for years it has pictured in hope, becomes a reality. It is not this laurel that the class considers of gravest importance or the chief consequence; but rather the consciousness that its spheres have been broadened and its faculties developed, for it does not regard itself as getting and possessing but rather as becoming and being. Toward the attainment of this, this class possessed passionate trust in the efficacy of labor. And most meritoriously, indeed, has it acquitted itself. In its notion of civilization, this class held among the elements comprised the development of the individual himself, always remembering to reach forth unto those things which are before.

At the end of its career, this Class realizes that victories won and successes achieved are in a large measure due to the unswerving efforts of our venerable President and worthy Faculty for whom its gratitude will endure forever. Now, before departing from these walls of learning, some to enter the school of life, others to resume the life of school, this illustrious class of '16 perceives that higher and nobler things yet remain; but it is confident that what it has attained is of such a nature that it may stand as a burning torch to guide the steps of succeeding classes.

—CLASS HISTORIAN.

Senior Prophecy

Knowing that I would be called upon to write a prophecy for the Senior Class of 1916, and feeling that my ability for such a task was not sufficient, I set about trying to find some one who could really tell the past, present and future. During the West Tennessee A. & M. Fair I picked up this card:

SEE
ALI ZAZA TROUPE
EGYPTIAN MENTALISTS

Give a Wonderfully Startling Exhibition

Will read your mind—Tell your name—Tell your wish—When you were born—If your venture will prove successful—If your Sweetheart loves you—When you will marry—Advise you on all matters of interest and importance—Will amuse and mystify you.

Can be seen only at Carnival this Week

After finding the booth of the Egyptian Mentalist, and seeing a demonstration of their ability, I knew I had reached the right place. When I had made my wants known, and had given in the names of the Seniors, Kali Hadad the older of the two Egyptians wrote out the fortunes of each member of the class and sealed them up in an envelope. When the Annual was ready to be printed I opened the envelope and this is what I found:

VIVIAN WHITELAW—She is young to be finishing college. Has a long life before her, but it will be a single one. She will teach many years. Has high ambitions to be president of Ladies' College. Will make tour of many states, lecturing.

JOHN PEARSON, JR.—He will marry when he has finished a law course. Will make much money as lawyer, but will lose all on account of the treachery of a supposed friend. Though in poverty for awhile, yet his home will be a happy one as he will be blessed with four children.

HUGH RAINES—Born under a lucky star. Should avoid marriage with one born in October. He will make a good Doctor. After many years of toil he will discover marvelous cures for various diseases.

BURRUS MATTHEWS—Will continue to attend school many years but will marry in the near future. Will travel in Foreign Countries. Ambition to be a great preacher but has little chance for attainment.

A. R. McGEHEE—He will be disappointed many times in love; but will live to a ripe old age and will marry two times. Will write books on theology that will startle the world.

S. S. GLENN—The Old Bachelor of the Class. Born under an unlucky star for matrimony will succeed as a preacher but is destined to an untimely take off.

HARRY MIHALOVITS—Should avoid business partnership with persons born in July. Will make money easily but will spend it readily. Will own many office buildings in a large city.

H. E. WATTERS—Will teach for a long time, and will be president of a large school. Will make warm personal friends. Has splendid ability to observe and oversee.

—CLASS PROPHET.

Senior Reverie

Every day hath its dawn and its shadow,
Every life hath its birth and its death,
Every landscape hath its shadow and highlights,
Even College life soon breathes its last breath,

Every journey winds at last to its end,
Though it leads through jungle to mountain,
So our trip through College may send
Us, despite trials, to sparkling fountain.

Our College life viewed in retrospect,
Clad in sad memories' somber cloak,
Makes vivid contrast with the prospect,
Bedecked with the garments of hope.

It is a time both to weep and to smile,
A time to be serious and bold.
For, as we christen the new, Erstwhile
We too must sadly bury the old.

All hail! the new life wrapped in mystery.
With thoughtful mood we view your radiant face:
Our College life becomes our history:
To those who follow, we yield our place.

Junior Class Poem

Children of illustrious Union,
Hearken to a Junior's wisdom.
When they bid thee write a poem,
Answer straightway, "Lo! I cannot."
Let me tell you with what anguish
Have I called upon the Muses;
Have I raved and torn my hair out;
Have I wept and prayed and pleaded;
How I burned the oil at midnight;
How I studied, how I pondered;
But the Muses are illusive
And alas! they would not heed me!

Then I thought of all the others
How much greater were their talents;
By how much the more poetic,
Why did they not use their genius?
There was Robert Perry Mahon,
With his smooth and shining tresses,
With his smile so sweet and winning;
Best beloved by all the maidens.
There was Lucile Frances Inlow,
Tall and slender like a willow;
For her beauty she was famous,
For her grace and flow'r-like beauty.

Then I thought of Hughes, our writer,
Our Greek scholar and Logieian.
Of H. Ellis, our debater,
And of Warren, the great singer.
Then there came to mind the doctor,
Robert White, with his "Tin Lizzie."
Came to mind Hal Moore, the wisest,
Tho' the sport and Lady-killer.
Then the bravest of the Juniors
Ellis Inlow, football hero;
Best beloved of all his teachers,
For his quiet studious habits.

As I thought them each one over,
Wonder soon became amazement,
That the mighty Juniors chose me;
Chose the least one for their poet;
One who's neither rhyme nor reason;
Neither bravery nor wisdom;
One who could not write a poem
Tho' the Muses came to aid her.
Weep, oh! weep with me, my children,
That their talents still lie buried
Since they would not court the Muses,
Since they would not write this poem.

Sophomore Poem.

Happy are we as we take a glance
Backward over the days of yore,
With placid heart we look in advance,
Feeling naught can be more than Sophomore.

We will soon be dignified Juniors,
Promoted from the Sophomore ranks;
Then will come grave, reverend Seniors
And a last good bye to college pranks.

We've survived the cares of the Freshman heart
As our aching backs were loaded with tasks.
We rode the waves in our Sophomore bark,
And now we don the Junior masks.

Our teachers have helped us see the light—
We have followed as best we could.
Trusting always in their sense of right,
Knowing that their care was for our good.

When College days are gone at last.
Their joys and tasks forever fled,
We'll hold them still, mem'ries of the past;
Or above their graves we'll softly tread.

—SOPHOMORE POET.

Freshman Class Hymn.

There's a class at dear old Union,
That has determined to be queen,
Of all the others until they leave
The school in the year Nineteen.

Many classes have left in bygone years,
And their places are hard to fill,
But the Freshman class of the year Nineteen,
Will be the greatest e're on the Hill.

Now, Freshmen, as a rule, are jolly,
And they take their work as a joke,
But their fun don't cease when they have no cents,
And they've gone as what's known as "dead broke."

Thus I could go on forever,
Forever and ever and aye,
But I'd always come back to the same old place,
And really have more to say.

Editor's Note:—The remainder of this entrancing poem may be found among "Income." It was too long to print all here.

McGavock, the president, is known by his hair,
His basketball, football, and ladies;
But we feel what we say when we say that we feel,
That they all should be cast into Hades.

If Galloway could, we are certain he would,
Use his brains in solving his problems,
But we're almost convinced that there surely must be,
In their stead, the remnants of goblins.

For music we look to a Freshman,
Emmanuel, the younger, by name,
For vocal selections, McNeely and Johnson,
Are both known alike for their fame.

FOOTBALL TEAM

Football

We have just finished one of the most successful football seasons in the history of our school. In September when the gridiron enthusiasts were first called, only five of the former team, Captain Folk, Inlow, Conyers, McGavock and Crutcher, answered to their names. But, instead of the missing ones, we had Murray, Baxter, and Long from Jackson Hi, and Shaver, McNeely, Wagster, Tatum, Pulley, Koffman, Burks, Phillips, Mason and Berkstresser.

The team was very fortunate in securing the services of Perry Callahan, as coach. He played football on that famous team of the University of Tennessee in 1914. The Coach, having been under some of the best coaches of the South, was able to render great service to the team by instructing the players in the best possible ways of defense and offense. Although our football schedule was a little below the average in the number of games played, Manager White had the best schedule possible under the circumstances.

The opening of the season was very auspicious. Trenton University came for the opening game on the 2nd of October. The Trenton boys put up a game fight, but they were unable to cope with Coach Callahan's machine. The resulting score was 13-7 in favor of the Cardinals. M. U. S. came over from Memphis and was defeated to the tune of 13 to 6. They, like the Trenton boys, not being able to withstand the onrushes of the Union squad. The Cardinals then took a trip to McKenzie where they played the McTyre team. That was a disastrous trip. We lost by a score of 44-0. Our boys played hard but at no time were they able to work the machine successfully against the heavy McTyre boys.

The next victim was the Bethel College team which came to Jackson with the highest spirits, hoping to do us as McTyre had done when we were up there. But their hopes were in vain. When Coach Callahan turned his machine loose on the afternoon of the 29th of October, the visiting boys thought that a cyclone had hit them. And after they had recovered from their surprise, the scorebook showed a score of 27-0 in favor of the Cardinals.

On November 12, the Cardinals went to Savannah where the locals were defeated by a score of 20-0. The feature of this game was the long run of Wagster.

The next and last game of the season was played at Highland Park on November 28th between Union and the High School. The two teams were very evenly matched. Only twice during the game was the goal line in danger and then, only for short times. More accidents happened in this game than in any other game. Wagster had the misfortune of getting his ankle broken, and Dick Lile of the High School team had his shoulder hurt seriously.

The season was in every way a success, thanks to Manager White and assistant Manager Brown, who is elected Manager for the coming season. All indications now presage a winning eleven for next fall.

Synopsis of Basketball Season

The 1915-16 season of basketball viewed from every angle was thoroughly a success; and the accomplishments in this branch of athletics were certainly commendable. It is quite true that the team on some occasions met defeat; but it did not remain defeated, improving as the season advanced and coming forth after each defeat the better for the experience. The team exhibited a style of play that was admirable and a source of delight to every Union supporter.

The Basket-ball boom was launched immediately after the close of the foot-ball season; and shortly there-after the suits were donned by the recruits and actual work began. At the outset it seemed as though the team would suffer because of the lack of experienced material, only one last year's man having returned. But this anxiety was soon relieved when it became evident that some stars of unusual ability were among the new comers.

Very fortunately the services of Coach Prince were obtained and to him is due largely the credit for the successes of the club. Coach Prince is a graduate of William Jewell, and was a student at the University of Missouri at which institutions he received his basket-ball training and made a splendid record.

Too much cannot be said of the Manager, Bob Mahon, for his untiring efforts in behalf of his club. By constant attention and early action he succeeded in placing Union in the position which she deserves—among the strongest contestants of this section of the South.

The season opened with the game between the Cardinals and the Club of the American School of Osteopathy. This was played on our home court before an enthusiastic crowd. And an unusual exhibition of early season basketball was given. It will be remembered that this team was the Champion of long standing in its section, and it was with credit that the Cardinals held it to the score which they did. As the season advanced, other strong teams, such as the Jonesboro "Y," the Nashville Ramblers, and University of Mississippi, were met with gratifying results, the more especially considering the standing of these clubs.

A mid-season trip was taken by the Cardinals for a return game with "Ole Miss" and later, closing the season, the Club made a tour through Western Kentucky and Tennessee, playing our opponents of long standing to defeat with but one exception.

If space would allow, complimentary personal mention would be made of every man who played on the Club, for a number of stars developed that are worthy of a place among the best of those gone by.

With the close of the season, there came from every student words of praise and thanks for the members of the club, the Coach, and Manager, for the team, which had so ably represented Union throughout the season. And even as this volume goes to press we are again stimulated in deeper appreciation of these men who are still working for the glory of Old Union, though now the baseball diamond is the center of action of which you may read in another section of this book.

Following is a summary of the games played during the season:

Baseball

Oh speak not with muffled voices
Of the games we may have lost;
For those won the heart rejoices,
No matter what they have cost.

So sings the poet of the baseball season of 1916. This is not only a happy way of regarding the season, but indeed the proper way. We cannot hope to win all the time, even if we do have an unusually good team. As the best of people make mistakes sometimes, so do the best teams lose once in-a-while. But this should not mar our rejoicing when we do win. So many people are like the old woman who went around grumpily all the time, complaining. When one would ask her how she felt, she would invariably answer, "I feel purty good today, but I hate to feel good, 'cause I allers know that when I feel that a-way, I'll soon have a bad spell." And so she never does have any sunshine, simply brooding over her hard luck. The man who can wear defeat happily is the one most prepared to win out next time. This virtue is very visible in the members of our team as well as in the remainder of the student body.

When Coach Anderson went out on the field in the opening of the season, he found more men out ready to try for places than have been seen on the diamond at Union in many years. Even during the football and basketball season, you could hear fellows asking, "Are you going to try out for baseball?" and "what place can you hold?" So the feeling was intense before it was warm enough for the Cardinals to be out on the field. The first day a practice was announced, every fellow and his brother scrapped together an old suit and hit the trail for the Irby field. A few were men who had played on teams before in the high school, others had but little experience; but all alike were fired with a desire to put out the best team possible. And this feeling has continued. In most cases there is an outburst of enthusiasm at the opening of the season, and then interest has a noticeable backset. But in this instance whenever a man has a chance to help along the good thing, he is only too glad to lend his aid. Of course, it was not expected that this team should go out against the teams it has played and win every game. For our manager, Mr. Carter, has arranged a schedule which includes some of the fastest teams in the country. Let it be said that it is more honor to have played a real good team and lost than to have played a scrub and won. The manager had this in mind when he arranged for the games, and he has most assuredly followed the idea clear through, as you will see by noticing the schedule below. We, however, have by no means lost all the games. Some have been won this season which will not soon be forgotten. They were such signal victories that on occasions night shirt parades and celebrations were indulged in, to the great delight of every one unless it happened to be some snob who hates baseball and every other form of athletics.

It will be of interest to note our line-up. Where can you beat our pitching staff? Wagster, an old football star, was on the spot along with Avery, Griggs, and Melton. These men mean "sure enuff" when they plant their toe in the hole and twirl. If you want to know how a ball looks coming from the pitcher and how, while dodging the batter, to hear the ball smack the mitt, just ask Life. While Bass, Melton and Griggs hold down the first base, Mason, Murray and Crook have scraps over second. McNeely seems to have no trouble with the third; but on the other hand, a man is a good one to get by. Raines is reigning in left field; Clitwood in center and Conyers plays in the right valley. Shaver's name has somewhat to do in suggesting his station, for he is in the place where a ball will come shaving along at a pretty swift rate; in other words, he is short stop.

Be it said in conclusion the student body is not slow to express its appreciation of what our warriors have done for the old school. We look upon them with pride and hope that the remainder of the season may be as profitable.

Announcement.

For some time there has been a search for a suitable name for the different teams of Union University. This year the "Cardinal and Cream" advanced the name "Cardinals." This name has been generally accepted, and all athletic teams of this University will in the future be known as the "Cardinals."

It is with sincere regret that we close our chronicle at this unpropitious date as there are many important events yet to take place.

Get It?

Dr. Watters (in Bible)—Mr. Wagster, about when did Moses live?

Mr. Wagster—I don't know.

Dr. Watters—Open your book to the first page of the lesson. What do you find?

Mr. Wagster—Moses, 4004.

Dr. Watters—Well, why didn't you remember that?

Mr. Wagster—Why, I thought that was his telephone number.

Vivian—Ina, was Stokes on his knees when he proposed?

Ina—No, I was.

Mary—Who is that stingy little man that keeps running around and taking the ball away from everybody?

Carter—That's the referee.

Mary—What side is he on?

Carter—Oh, the other side—always.

Dr. Savage—Mr. Inlow, discuss the topic.

Mr. Inlow—I couldn't read it, Doctor. It was a French quotation from Kant.

Hester—Oh, I just love Crutcher. He's perfectly dilly.

Bess—Yes, he was pickled the last time I saw him.

Prof. Prince (in Chemistry)—Now, we all understand the danger of this experiment as we know we are apt to be blown up any minute. Now come closer, please.

Mayra—Dr. Watters, you are a preacher, so please tell me what was the longest day for Adam.

Dr. Watters—Why, I don't know, Mayra.

Mayra—The day when there was no Eve.

Crockett—Forsan et haec olim meminisse iuvabit.

Carter—Is that a Latin quotation?

Buntin—Do you have to scale it?

Bass—Galloway, do you approve of dancing?

Galloway—No!

Bass—Why?

Galloway—Why, it's mere hugging set to music.

Bass—Well, what is there about that that you don't like?

Galloway—The music.

Dr. Watters (in Bible exam.)—Quote one passage from either of the books that we have studied that you think is a good text.

A Student—Thou shalt taketh but not giveth.

Hester—If Beatrice ever goes down the street with her mouth shut, she'll be arrested.

Delia—Beatrice? Why?

Hester—For carrying a concealed weapon.

Dr. Barrett—Baker, is that a pure quadratic?

Baker—No, sir, Doctor, that is impure.

John was going down the street with his suit ease and was met by Mary Ed.

Mary Ed—Going home?

John—Yes, Ma'am.

Mary Ed—I see.

John—Yes, Ma'am, that's the railroad.

Mr. Summar (on exam.)—Describe a circle?

Student—A circle is a round straight line with a hole in the middle.

Dr. Barrett—Galloway, you make take the 73rd problem.

Galloway—Can I work it at my seat, Doctor?

Dr. Barrett—Hum! I don't think you can work it any where.

Susie Mai (at table)—Hester, pass me that meat dish. I want a piece of meat if there is any.

Hester (handing dish)—You figure on that one and I'll get this other one and see what I can do for it.

Miss Whitelaw (in German)—What is the present of might?
Berkstresser (making brilliant guess)—“Could.”

Miss Ena—Girls, I'd like to know why you all call this dried beef, “shadow lace?”

Nina—Well, Miss Ena, because you can see through it before it's eaten; and after it's eaten, you can see through the one who has eaten it.

Mrs. Barry (in English)—Make two sentences using the word “buss.”

Senter—Her buss measure is forty-two inches, and I don't know but one meaning of that word.

Mrs. Barry—Why, its an old time kiss.

Senter—It sure must be an old time one.

Dr. Savage—Miss Vivian, why do you not answer some of the questions I ask? You haven't opened your mouth in three days.

Vivian—Three days ago in Chapel you told us to “study to be quiet.”

The sorority girls having waited some time for Angie to answer her bid to the sorority, she was asked by one of the girls what she intended to do about it. She replied: “You all want to get me in that thing and get me on the program. I'm in that old Literary Society already.”

Mrs. Summar—Why don't you say something once-in-a-while when we go calling.

Mr. Summar—Why, I'm always with you, dear.

McGavock to Koffman (who just entered school)—Are you a Freshman?

Koffman—No, I'm a Baptist.

Delia—Hal says I'm the whole world to him.

Nina—Well, here's Hal's chance to see more of the world.

Murray—Oh, I have something in my shoe.

Angie—Why, I should think you have.

Mrs. Barry (in History)—What science was necessary for the construction of the pyramid?

Bolding—Painting.

Hester—Don't be so protrucious, Nina.

Nina—I'm not going to play.

Carl—Crutch, how was the party at Mrs. Watters last night?

Cruteher—Oh, it lacked punch.

Lucile—Bill sure is rushing Louise. I wonder what she thinks of him?

Mary Ed—She thinks he's a man after her own heart.

Bob (at the basketball game)—Oh, Angie, look at McNeely, he'll soon be our best man.

Angie—Oh, Bob, this is so sudden.

Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary

FORT WORTH, TEXAS

Situated in the heart of a great Baptist Empire, owned and controlled by trustees from seven states. It has ten regular professors and four teachers and gives instruction in all the departments of study in Theological education for preachers, in Missionary training for women, in practical training for Evangelistic singers, Sunday School workers and Pastor's assistants. Special emphasis is given to studies in the English Bible and Evangelism. Help on expenses is given to needy students in two ways—opportunities for pastoral and mission work and financial aid from students' aid and loan funds. Healthful in climate, delightful in environments, sound in theology, evangelistic in spirit, missionary in vision and life. We give many of our courses in correspondence.

MEMPHIS AS A CLINICAL CENTER

Memphis is the clinical center of the Mississippi Basin. Situated at the intersection of sixteen railroads, as a result of their enormous traffic, and that of the great water highway northward and southward, Memphis has a more numerous floating population than any other city south of the Great Lakes. These traveling thousands daily within the city represent practically every section of the United States, climatically and geographically. Hence the numerous hospitals in the city are called upon to treat a very great variety of diseases and surgical conditions. This is a distinct benefit to the student of medicine.

Clothes do not make the man. That's positive. But good ones certainly come through strong as an "assist."

And there's many a good scout cramming away in the halls of learning right now who, if judged by his clothes, would fail to qualify for the Bush Leagues. It's fifty-fifty, just the same, that at no distant date many of them will have the "Majors" tagging around after 'em with nice, fat contracts. In the game of life, that is the day toward which all college men are plugging. Wearing clothes that bring out a man's personality, add to his appearance, show that his taste and judgment are keen, give him the appearance of prosperity, will go a long way toward helping him make good.
